

Hudson Taylor lived in a little English village with his father, his mother and his two sisters. They lived in a time when you travelled by coach and horses to get to places and it took you ever so long to get anywhere.

Hudson Taylor lived in a little English village.

One day something that should have happened quickly took a very long time. Everyone was having their lunch, Hudson was hungry but he hadn't been given any soup. His mother had forgotten him. Hudson's tummy rumbled but nobody noticed. He sighed – just a little one – but nobody heard. What would Hudson do?

Hudson was hungry
but he hadn't been
given any soup.

